

Dmitrii Goltsov

I am a laborious, competent and punctual specialist you can fully rely upon. Moreover, I am a diligent learner and my education and knowledge of foreign languages are an undeniable proof of it.

Amongst my achievements I can emphasise that during the first 3 months of COVID pandemic in Russia I negotiated more than 160 million roubles ($2 million) rent reduction, which is an example of my communicative and other soft skills.

But despite all that I have always been keen on modern technologies, especially in IT-sphere. So, last summer I decided to become a professional programmer. I started with learning basics of operating systems, CVS, and familiarising with different programming languages (via manuals, books, videos etc.). And I have found a passion for back-end and Java, which I currently learn. During my education I mastered different technologies and completed several training projects that can be found on my GitHub profile.
